

Fish Camp

Being a good angler requires more than just fancy gear and lots of tackle; you have to possess basic techniques and understand how environment and biology combine to influence fish behavior. At Fish Camp, our expert anglers will instruct participants in everything from tying flies to the basic mechanisms of casting.

Whether at Claytor Lake fishing for channel catfish, canoeing the New River in search of bass, or fly-fishing for trout at the Cascades, Scouts will have the opportunity to fish virtually every type of freshwater habitat. In addition to fishing, the group will visit a fish hatchery and learn to fillet and cook their catch.
